reins to those circles that have for months been clamoring for U-boat warfare."

Naturally these political generals were not pleased with Bethmann. Hindenburg, in his brief remarks, made such cutting allusions to him that he later on tried to break the force of his words, after somebody had drawn his attention to their sharpness. And Ludendorff indicated his opinion of Bethmann by praising Loyd George as a man of strong will who was not ed during the war was C-unt Revent ow "Deut the Tages-Zeitung," which repeated y put forth that fantastic no tion.
